Are you looking to build a beautiful custom home at an affordable price, with an award-winning master general contractor overseeing the complete process? Would you like a collaborative, step-by-step decision-making experience throughout your build?

Then Vineyard Homes and owner/builder Deb Short should be your next call!

Over the past 20 years Deb Short has built Vineyard Homes into one of the finest custom building companies in New Mexico. Vineyard Homes is a member of the Home Builders Association of Central New Mexico and has won several building awards during the Parade of Homes. Deb is a master general contractor who enjoys her work and strives to provide the best building services to each of her clients.

Having recently become a grandmother, Deb understands that families need ease of workability and value in their homes. Her warmth and loving nature transfer into the building process, which she strives to make as enjoyable as possible.

“Making the design-build process an experience my clients can enjoy, instead of stressing over, is one of my main goals,” says Deb. Many builders do not take this approach, she notes, and you are left to make big decisions on your own.

Deb believes the quality of her homes is equal to the effort she puts into satisfying her clients. According to Christine and Robert Becker, former clients of Vineyard Homes, “Deb’s willingness to help, her pleasant and fun personality, personal knowledge, and experience contribute to her being an outstanding contractor and business partner during the process of building a new home.”

“Call for your free consultation today,” says Deb. “You have absolutely nothing to lose, and you may even gain some knowledge that may help you choose the best builder for you.”

“I was so excited to win awards for both of my parade homes this year. It was unexpected and rewarding,” says Short.
